Writing Process Step 3 – Revising your work

1. What to revise

- Have I done what the teacher wants? (UDS)       .....
- Have I avoided plagiarism?                     .....
- Have I expressed my ideas clearly?             .....
- Have I written the required number of words?   .....
- Have I written a good introduction with a main idea sentence (thesis statement)? .....
- Have I organized the body into paragraphs in appropriate order?       .....
- Does each of my paragraphs have a good topic sentence? .....
- Have I excluded all irrelevant information?     .....
- Do I connect my ideas with good transition words? .....
- Do I have a good variety of sentences, including complex, compound-complex? .....
- Do some of my complex sentences start with the dependent clause?       .....
- Am I sure that I have no problem "sentences": fragments, run-ons, ramblings? .....
- Have I used some complex (less common) vocabulary? .....
- Do I have a good conclusion that “rounds up” the composition? .....

2. How to revise

Essential: You must understand what a main idea sentence is and what a topic sentence is.

- If you do nothing else, highlight your main idea sentence and your topic sentences. Check that they follow your outline (and therefore that your writing complies with the teacher’s instructions).
- Then check that your body paragraphs contain information that develops the topic sentence – with examples, explanations, etc.
- Understand the aspects of writing that you personally have difficulty with, and concentrate on those aspects to revise. Use the checklist above.
- If you have time and ambition, check each of the items in the checklist above.

Ask your teacher for advice.
